HOME LAYOUT DESCRIPTION

A "four-level quad house" refers to a split-level home with four distinct, staggered levels. This design allows for greater separation of living spaces and can maximize the use of a lot, especially on sloping land, although this lot is flat. The levels are typically connected by staircases, creating a unique and potentially spacious layout. This layout has the kitchen and dining, sun porch, front foyer, and access to the garage all on the main level.
